

Baidu 'self-driving' cars to hit roads in 3 years

Online search giant Baidu said on Monday that it has opened a new business unit for self-driving cars. The Beijing-based company completed the test drive of its self-driven car on various roads last week, and it intends to mass-produce the vehicles within five years. Wang Jin, the manager of the new business unit, said that the value of a car today mainly depends on its mechanics, but in the future it could depend on the smart system.
